Preface

The objective of this workshop was to provide a forum to facilitate the opportunity for interaction between specialists working in different fields of soil science, but who share a common interest in group soil biological and soil physical methods applied to biophysical attributes in soil quality. This goal was achieved by means of lectures, technical presentations, and field, greenhouse and laboratory studies on different parts of soil quality subject. The multidisciplinary character of the workshop allowed an effective exchange of ideas between different topics in soil quality having a symmetry background.

The workshop consisted of three micro courses of two hours each and some plenary talks of 30 minutes, as well as a small number of short communications. In addition to the contributions of the participants, other specialists in the field that could not attend the meeting. The main motivation for the three courses was to provide a short and updated introduction to current research topics, as well as to provide an overview for the non-specialists. We briefly describe the principal results of these lectures.

Finally, on behalf of the Organizing Committee, we would like to express our gratitude to the participants and assistants in the EURASIAN SOIL workshop 2013 for their presence and contributions, as well as to the members of the Coordinators for their help and outstanding efforts, with special mention to Evgeny Shein from the Moscow State University.

We hope that you found the workshop interesting and fun. We also hope that in the years to come, EURASIAN SOIL Congress 2014 will become a platform for dialogue and interaction on new concepts and “The Soul of Soils and Civilization”. After all, our goal is to help you, the researchers, distribute your latest achievements to a broader audience.
